Summarizing

It is always important to think about what we are reading while we read. One way we can do this is to summarize parts of a story we have read. When you summarize you should think about the characters, think about where the story takes place (setting), think about the problem in the story and how the characters solve it, and think about what happens in the beginning, middle, and end of the story.

On the lines below, summarize what happened in the part of the story you read:
